A natural product is a chemical compound or substance produced by a living organism—that is, found in nature. In the broadest sense, natural products include any substance produced by life. Natural products can also be prepared by chemical synthesis (both semisynthesis and total synthesis) and have played a central role in the development of the field of organic chemistry by providing ...

Transport-derived emissions of volatile organic compounds (VOCs) have decreased owing to stricter controls on air pollution. This means that the relative importance of chemicals in pesticides, coatings, printing inks, adhesives, cleaning agents, and personal care products has increased. McDonald et al. show that these volatile chemical products now contribute fully one-half of emitted VOCs in ...

In organic chemistry, phenols, sometimes called phenolics, are a class of chemical compounds consisting of a hydroxyl group ( $\text{-OH}$ ) bonded directly to an aromatic hydrocarbon group. The simplest of the class is phenol,  $\text{C}_6\text{H}_5\text{OH}$ . Phenolic compounds are classified as simple phenols or polyphenols based on the number of phenol units in the molecule.

Improving access to natural products. One analysis of newly introduced drugs states that only sorafenib has reached the market from an origin in high-throughput screening of combinatorial chemistry libraries. With the growing realisation that the chemical diversity of natural products is a better match to that of successful drugs than the diversity of collections of synthetic compounds 13, 14 ...

Medical literature estimates that more than one percent of the general population suffers from fragrance ingredient allergies. And according to the American Academy of Dermatology (AAD), fragrances are considered the leading cause of cosmetic contact dermatitis. Reactions to both natural and synthetic fragrance ingredients can range from contact dermatitis (characterized by redness, swelling ...
